GREAT BRITAIN IS ALARMED AND SHE HOLDS KEY TO PEACE

If She Allies Herself With France War May Be Postponed

GERMANS COULD PAUSE

This is Opinion of Responsible Leaders of Other Countries

Note: Great Britain is alarmed in Great Britain's hands rests the answer of "Will War Come," writes H. R. Knickerbocker in the thirty-fifth article of his series "Will War Come."

LONDON, Mar. 24.—(INS)—French statesmen may be alarmed. Italian statesmen may be alarmed. A dozen European chancelleries may echo with anxious prophecies. But when British statesmen are alarmed, it means dark days for Europe.

Britain is alarmed today. She is alarmed as she has never been since Tirpitz and his navy league built the German fleet into a challenge to British security.

Again today Britain is alarmed at Germany, this time not led by Wilhelm I but by Adolf Hitler; this time not fueled by Admiral Tirpitz, but by General Goering; this time not at the German navy league but at the Reich defense league; this time not at German submarines but at German ombers.

Britain holds the key to the date of the future war in Europe. If she allies herself with France today, openly declares to Germany that Britain and France will fight side by side at the drop of the German hat, the war may be postponed indefinitely. If she repeats her conduct in the tense years, months and days immediately preceding the last war, giving Germany the impression that she will remain neutral, the war may be accelerated by years.
Britain and France together may give Germany pause that need never be given by war. Britain alone, undeclared, may give Germany encouragement that could only end in war.

This is not the opinion of an individual. It is the opinion of the responsible leaders of France, Italy, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, of Belgium, Switzerland, Holland, Denmark. And today it is the consensus of a growing body of public opinion in Britain itself.

"Everything depends on Britain."
"What will Britain do?"

This is the statement and this is the question that dominate the thoughts of Europe. The question is one that Berlin asks with no less interest than Paris. For Hitler's foreign policy was based on the belief that Germany could win the benevolent neutrality of the non-active friendship of Britain.
Today for the first time Britain herself is preparing an answer. That answer is perhaps foreshadowed in the British House of Commons. That rhyme is one of the last resorts of democracy in this part of the world.
It is so for one reason because of its unfailing restraint. In that tribute laments are seldom. Napoleon brought the Tirpitz brought one. Today Hitler has evoked strange voices from the least excitable of nations.

Listen to the voices of Britain.

"Everybody knows today that our danger is from Germany. . . . England faces today a danger greater than when the Germans crossed into Belgian territory in 1914." Colonel Josiah Wedgwood (Labor) in the House.

"If Belgium is frightened, why should we ignore her warnings? She thinks that in less than 18 months Germany can if she persists in her rearmament, be as strong as France is today." Captain Frederick Guest (Conservative) head of the Territorial Air Defense Force in London—in the House.

"The race in armaments has begun.
It began 12 months ago when the Hitler regime took office in Germany and it has been proceeding practically unimpeded ever since. . . . During the war only thirty tons of bombs were dropped on London and they killed 188 people. It has been estimated that today the strongest air power in Europe could drop 600 tons daily on London which at the same rate would mean a death rate of 37,600 a day. You cannot expect France to reduce her armaments unless she is absolutely certain that we shall be there to support her when the moment arrives." Mr. Geofrey Mander ((Liberal) in the House.

But listen to that British Democrates, Winston Churchill:
"Now that the hideous air war has cast the shadow of its wings over the harassed civilization of the Twentieth Century no one can pretend that by any measures which we could take it would be possible to give absolute protection against an aggressor dropping bombs in this island and killing a great many unarmed men, women and children. . . .
"Germany is arming fast and no one is going to stop her. . . . That seems

LEGION AIR

(By ELMER)

Look for this column in the future and learn more of the veterans organizations—their purpose, benefits to be derived from membership, and legislation affecting veterans and their dependents.

What is the Legion's purpose? Service, service to community, State and Nation. Members of the Legion gave service while they were members of the armed forces of the United States in the World War. The Legion was organized that they might continue to give the same service in time of Peace as they gave in time of war.

There is no rank in the Legion and no distinction between home service and foreign service. The Legion is an organization of veterans run by veterans. Each has one voice.

Why join a veteran's society? Because there is a national desire to perpetuate associations formed under the hardships of war. There is comradeship and strength in organization. Individually we may weigh but little, organized our voice and influence is as far reaching as our organization.

Adjusted Compensation (National Bonus). The Adjusted Compensation Act was passed May 19th, 1924. Thousands of veterans who are entitled to this benefit have not applied for it.
Persons eligible to apply should do so at once. The deadline for receipt of applications is January 2nd, 1935.

Veterans filing claims or those submitting statements in support of claims already filed should remember that it is absolutely necessary that all statements, including those of physicians be notarized.

LITTLE RED SCHOOLHOUSE HAS NEARLY DISAPPEARED

Only One Building Used Continually for More Than 100 Years

IS IN STRASBURG TWP.

By John W. Scotzin

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
HARRISBURG, Mar. 24.—(INS)— The little red school house, about which tons of ink have been spilt in sentimental bits of prose and poetry, has virtually disappeared in the face of a century of progress in public education.

As Pennsylvania prepares to celebrate during the week of April 1 the centennial anniversary of the birth of the free school system within its borders, it is found that in only one building used continually for more than 100 years, are still administered the fundamentals of education.

It is the sandstone school in Strasburg Township, Lancaster County, which is being used daily by a group of 30 pupils. The one-room structure, built in 1815, is still in a fine state of preservation.

Others may still remain but they have long since been abandoned as institutions of learning. Several have been found in various sections of the state, particularly in the Southeastern counties where they are being preserved as relics.

About 4000 schoolhouses, many of them known as "pauper schools," dotted the education field in 1934 when the free public school act was passed.
Some were built by voluntary contributions and others as community projects.

These "pauper schools," established under the law of 1809, proved inadequate since there were few families who cared to go on record as being too poor to pay the tuition of their children. An added factor tending to abolish this system was actual segregation of students for want of tuition funds.

The early schools consisted of only one room and were usually built of logs with a sprinkling of natural stone. In a majority of cases, the building was of a simple septagonal design.

COURT DIVIDES FIFTH WARD INTO TWO DISTRICTS

Names Election Officers For The Two Precincts
Created

NAMES POLLING PLACES

One in Zion Lutheran Parish House and One at Enterprise Fire Station

An order has been handed down in the court of Bucks County at Doyle-town which divides the fifth ward of Bristol Borough into two election districts.

This makes four of the six wards in Bristol to be divided into two election districts each, the others being first ward fourth ward, sixth ward.

There are over 800 voters registered in the fifth ward which made the election unwieldy for the election board.

The order of the court was handed down on the petition of citizens of the fifth ward asking that the ward be divided. The petition was presented in the Court of Quarter Sessions yesterday and was ruled upon by Judges Hiram H. Keller and Calvin S. Boyer.

The two districts will be known as the first and second precincts of the fifth ward, with the boundary lines followed out as in the petition.

The boundary line extends through the center of Jefferson avenue from the canal to Wood street, up Wood street to Grant avenue, through the rear of Lincoln avenue to the Delaware river.

The polling places, the Court directed, for the first precinct will be in the fire station of Enterprise Fire Co., No. 5, 915 Wood street.

The court appointed Thomas Burns, judge of elections of the first precinct; Howard North, inspector of election and Richard J. Blanche as minority inspector. The court also appointed for constable in that precinct J. C. Schmidt, Jr. James H. Brooks was named as registration assessor.

In the second precinct, the Court directed the polling place shall be at the Parish House of Zion Lutheran Church, 303 Jefferson avenue.

The following appointments for that precinct are:

Judge of elections, David Neill; majority inspector, Peter Polizzi; minority inspector, Edward N. McIl-vaine. The court also directed that Gaetano Greco, who was elected and now holds the office of assessor of the fifth ward, but who resides in the second precinct, shall continue in office until the term expires. It was also directed by the court that Anthony Manganaciani, who was elected and now holds the office of constable but who resides in the second precinct, shall also continue in office until his term expires.

DANISH BUTTER MAKERS PIONEER CO-OPERATIVES

Effort Was To Get Higher Prices For Their Product

ORGANIZED A DAIRY

(Note: This is the third of a series of five articles in which International News Service presents a survey of agricultural cooperation in European countries.
The previous articles gave the historical background of the cooperative movement in relation to agriculture and told how the Government is assuming control of agriculture in Great Britain.)

The present article deals with Denmark, where farm co-operation is highly developed, and also with the movement in other Scandinavian countries.)

LONDON, Mar. 24.—(INS)—A dozen peasants in the province of Jutland, ambitious to improve the quality of their butter so they could get a higher price for it, were the pioneers of the agricultural co-operative movement in Denmark.

They organized a dairy, agreeing in co-operative spirit to send all their milk to the dairy every day and to share in the proceeds according to the amount of milk they contributed.

That was in 1882, and today all forms of agriculture in Denmark are organized on a co-operative basis, and the ramifications of the movement extend into all spheres of the national life.

Today 90 per cent. of the milk produced in Denmark goes to co-operative dairies, and other agricultural functions have a co-operative basis according to the following percentages: Slaughter Houses, 70 per cent.; eggs, 22; buying food for animals, 31; cattle, 86; pigs, 75; and chickens, 26 per cent. There are more than 6,000 co-operative societies with approximately 800,000 members.

DEPUTY SCOUT CHIEF IS TO VISIT BRISTOL ON MONDAY EVENING

Dr. Geo. J. Fisher to Address Meeting of Scouts
Here

FIRST TIME IN COUNTY

Public Invited to Attend and Hear the Eloquent
Speaker

Dr. George J. Fisher, Deputy Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America, will be in Bristol Monday evening. Dr. Fisher is going to address the delegates who will be attending the 1934 County Council Meeting of the Bucks County Boy Scout Council. It will be the first time that the county has had a National Headquarters official at one of its gatherings. Deputy Chief Executive Fisher has been associated with the Boy Scout program in America for over 20 years. He is one of the most eloquent speakers.

The meeting is an open gathering for everyone interested in boys. The public is invited to be present at 7.45 p. m. at the Bristol Presbyterian Church to enjoy the program. County civic leaders such as Council President Thomas Ross, Commodore Thomas B. Stockham, Boy Scout Commissioner William Burgess, Chairman of the County Court of Honor Committee, Hon. Hiram H. Keller, Chairman of the Camping Committee, Arthur M.
Eastburn, and others, will be present.

The program will consist of a colorful flag ceremony, and other dramatizations. Instead of the usual routine business meeting of lengthy reports the story of the council's work during 1933 is going to be a series of pageants. The reports will be a part of an imaginary television broadcasting station. Lighting effects are going to add to impressiveness of the different scenes.

Every cub, scout, and seascout unit in the county has been asked to send a leader, and a color guard of honor to greet Dr. Fisher. The honor guard is assembling at the Radcliffe street entrance of the Presbyterian Church at 6.45 p. m. It will leave promptly at that time to go to the Pennsylvania Railroad station to greet the national representative. The parade will leave the railroad station at 7 p. m. and march over to Pond street, down to Mill street, turning left, and following that street through to Radcliffe.

On Radcliffe street the parade will disband in front of the Presbyterian Church.

The County Council extends a cordial welcome to everybody to attend.
It is going to be interesting entertainment, and will provide an evening of pleasure for everyone. Members of the Rotary and Exchange clubs have been specially invited to attend. Walter Pitkonka, chairman of arrangements, has asked all of the Bristol ministers to extend an invitation to their congregations on Sunday.

Sixty To Graduate At National Farm School

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 24.—When commencement exercises are held at National Farm School, near here, tomorrow, the speaker will be Mayor J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia.

Sixty seniors, the largest group to graduate from the Farm School, will receive diplomas.

In spite of the present economic conditions and especially conditions on the farm, the demand for Farm School graduates this year has been greater than ever before and every graduate will not only leave the school with a diploma but with a job as well.

A new class of 60 students will be admitted to Farm School on April 9. column is economical and profitable.

ROMPING WITH THE GOLD FISH

(By "The Stroller")

A prominent and well-known resident of Newportville was seen floundering about in the fish pond in the rear of his residence, one day recently.

How did he get there?

That was the question on every tongue.

It appears that this man who is also well known in Bristol and other sections of Bucks County, thought Spring was here, and decided to clean out the pond, so that the gold fish could sport about.

He stood upon the edge of the pool and leaning over to scrape out the accumulation of the winter months, lost his equilibrium.

In he went, up to his neck.
The gold fish of course were surprised to see their caretaker swimming about in the pool with them. They got excited and went in all directions.

Their fright was not for long.
The man soon climbed out of the pool and beat a hasty retreat to the house, where he changed clothes and sat by the side of a warm fire.

Three Properties Are Sold By Bucks Co. Sheriff seized from Edgar M. Stroud, et al., was started at $400 on the first bid, and finally was purchased for $12,050 by the attorney in the writ, Thomas Ross, of Doylestown. The real debt on this property was $11,301.66.

Other sales were as follows:
Point Pleasant: Tract seized from William Herbold, Martha Herbold; real debt, $3271.60; sold to Doyle-town National Bank and Trust Company, for $65.47.

Plumstead township: Two tracts seized from Holland Penny et ux; real debt, $3057.35; sold to Oscar O.
Bean, attorney, for $326.45.

FARMERS EXPRESS THEIR FEELING ON THE N. R. A.

Consensus of Opinion is That Farmer Has Not Been Helped

AT GRANGE SESSION

FALLSINGTON, Mar. 24.—A feature of the lecturer's hour at the meeting of Delaware Valley Grange in community hall here, Wednesday evening, was the expression on the part of farmers regarding the question "Has the NRA helped the farmer in Pennsylvania?"

Mrs. Florence Dyer, lecturer of Bus-tleton Grange, conducted the lecturer's hour, and the following were among the answers received from some of the tillers of the soil who attended:

Joseph A. Smith: "Everything we purchase, asparagus, tape, crates, etc., are higher; the reason the merchants give is the NRA raise in wages is responsible."

Dr. Joseph Vansant, Fox Chase: "A poll vote in a recent farm paper resulted in majority voting that NRA had raised prices of everything the farmer needs to purchase, but had not benefited him."

Walter L. Campbell, Emilie: "The farmer has been promised higher prices for milk, but has not yet received them, but all find purchased goods cost more."

Edward C. Harding, Bustleton: "I may be prejudiced, but I am very bitter against it. I think the tiller of the soil is the forgotten man. Every other business has a guaranteed selling price over cost of production, are not allowed to cut price or undersell, but the farmers' products still are priced according to supply and demand but all the equipment he must purchase is sold at a fixed price."

Herman Heavner, Fallsington:
"There is one aim and going to be one result—force the small dealer of any business out; and it is doing it. Only large corporations can hold on."

Master Joseph A. Smith presided at the session.

H. C. Hiller, Master of Philadelphia Grange, Bustleton, presented Delaware Valley Grange with the traveling gavel, which is being taken from grange to grange throughout Philadelphia and Lower Bucks County.

The following program was given:
Singing, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," readings, Mrs. Nickols, "The Woman Who Would Not Stop," and "There Was a Man;" Past Master of Philadelphia Grange recited Barbara Fritchie; contralto solos, "Smiling Through" and "I Love You Truly," Blanche Wenker; reading, "Trials of a Twin," Edward C. Harding.

Dr. Vansant gave an interesting account of a hunting trip he and friends took in West Canada last year.
Mrs. Vansant operated the moving picture machine. The pictures showed the scenery, the animals tracked, and the mounted trophies in his home. He said the air is so clear and rarified that one must be familiar with it to judge distance.

Delaware Valley Grange served cake and coffee at the conclusion of the meeting.

Two Injured As Trailer Strikes Side of Bus

LANGHORNE, Mar. 24.—When a trailer attached to a truck struck the side of a bus of the Short Line Bus Company near Oxford Valley last night, two people were injured.

L. G. Smith, 42 years old, of Philadelphia, received lacerations of the head, face and hands, and Roy Miller, 33 years old, of New York City, was cut about the face and scalp. The victims, bus passengers, were treated at the scene by Highway Patrolman Kelly.

Laud F. Coakley, of the Continental Hotel, Washington, D. C., driver of the bus, was traveling toward Philadelphia, while Harry Binn, of 74 Plymouth Street, New York, was driving a truck in the opposite direction. According to police, the trailer swung across the road and struck the side of the bus, shattering two windows. Unaware of the accident, Binn continued on and was stopped at Morrisville by a bridge officer. After being questioned by Patrolman Kelly, Binn was allowed to go.

QUAKE RECORDED AT DENVER

registered on the seismograph at started about 7 a. m. and was still in progress an hour later.

NO MORE MONEY FOR DEFAULTERS

Washington, D. C., Mar. 24.—So long as France continues to default on her debt to the United States, the American investment market remains closed to French securities and no American bankers will be permitted to make loans to her directly or indirectly.
The same goes for other defaulting debtors.

This was set forth as the fixed policy of the administration following the Treasury's action in denying a group of New York bankers permission to participate in a Dutch Syndicate loan to France of 100,000,000 Guilders.

This is the first time that Washington has "cracked down" on a defaulting nation and in diplomatic quarters it was considered a sharp rebuke to France. Administration officials were waiting today with interest to see what repercussions there will be in Paris.

FOURTEEN BURN TO DEATH

Lynchburg, Va., Mar. 24.—Fourteen others were reported injured, many
others were reported injured, many seriously when fire swept the transient relief bureau here today. All the injured were rushed to local hospitals. Four white men and ten negroes, all unemployed, comprised the death list. It was feared the death toll would mount as some of the injured were so seriously injured they were expected to die. There was no immediate identification of the dead. Identification was expected to be a tedious job since practically all tenants of the bureau were from other cities. The bureau building a weather-beaten two story frame structure in the heart of the city, was a roaring inferno soon after the first fire broke out.

ANNOUNCE SPELLING WINNERS FOR DISTRICT

Harold Johnson, Trevoze, Wins the Lower District Honors at Langhorne

CO. FINALS ON MONDAY

Spelling contests for "old timers" were eagerly entered into in the three districts of Bucks County, last evening.

With those at present engaged in teaching or attending schools or colleges, barred, the old time spellers had the evening to themselves.

In the lower end district contest held at Langhorne high school, Harold Johnson, Trevoze, was adjudged the winner.

The upper end district honors at Quakertown went to S. S. Lint.
The champion speller of the central district at Doylestown proved to be C. C. S. Sterner, 55 year old former teacher in the Upper Makefield Township public schools.

The Doylestown contests were conducted at the court house, and the spellers from the Quakertown area met in the Quakertown high school.
Those who finished in the first ten of the elimination contests last night will compete on Monday night in the Bucks County championship contest to be held at the court house, Doyle-town, the winner of which will go to Harrisburg on April 4th to compete in the state wide competition; one speller from each county will compete.

The contest is only for adults and not for school children, and is one of the features of the observance of Pennsylvania's 100th anniversary of the birth of the public school system.
The Bucks County contests are being held under the supervision of the office of county superintendent J.
Harry Hoffman.

FOURTH SAFE STOLEN

CROYDON, Mar. 24.—For the fourth time in the past few months a safe was stolen from the establishment of the American Stores Company, here.
The theft occurred sometime last night or this morning. Only one of the first three safes stolen has been recovered. State police are making an investigation.

JAMISON, Mar. 24.—Flames first seen leaping from the roof of the large frame barn on the property of Dietrich Froelich, on Old York Road, here, this morning at eight o'clock, proved a stiff opponent for firemen from four companies, the blaze spreading in turn to the Froelich restaurant, the "Moonlight Dance Hall," and the Froelich house, nearby.

DANGEROUS

President Roosevelt's proposal for Federal control of communication lines needs to be studied very carefully before it can be indorsed as a wise move or one calculated to advance public welfare.

It has several angles, one of which recently was pointed out by former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri. Mr. Reed saw in the proposal, if adopted, a grave danger to the freedom of the press. If the government should take control of the telegraph and telephone lines, he emphasized, it would be in a position to "largely influence and circumscribe the dissemination of news."

The warning is one to be noted by all who believe in a free press. It is not charged that Mr. Roosevelt had this in mind when he outlined his proposal. That the danger referred to by Mr. Reed resides in the plan, though, is cause for concern. Whether the government, if it controlled communication lines, would seek to exercise a censorship over news is beside the question. The point is, no such power should be lodged in the government. It was only at great effort, as represented in united action, that the country's newspapers kept out of the newspaper code a provision interpreted as endangering the freedom of the press.

A free and challenging press is needed now more, perhaps, than at any other time in the nation's history. The rights of the people, individually and by groups, are being circumscribed by legislative action or governmental edict to an extent never before attempted in this country. Only by giving the people an unobstructed view of what is being done can there be averted the danger of their losing their liberty.

Freedom of the press must be preserved at all costs.

KAISER'S RETURN UNLIKELY

Reports that the former kaiser is considering a return to Germany and that restoration of the Hohenzollern monarchy is a possibility must be taken with a considerable grain of salt.

It is not the first time that such reports have become current since Wilhelm fled to Holland. They usually follow each gathering at Doorn of members of the Hohenzollern family.

There are quite a large number of monarchists in Germany. It is doubtful if very many of them would be in favor of restoring the former kaiser to the throne, which he deserved in the country's darkest hour. They would prefer another member of the family.

But even this could not be done without the support and co-operation of Adolf Hitler, now dictator. Hitler has given no indication that his sense of loyalty to the house of Hohenzollern is greater than his ambition to retain the place of power won through the force of his personality and leadership.

That he would voluntarily step down and turn the government over to the former kaiser is not likely. And his grip upon the country seems too strong to be broken by the monarchists.

An Englishman suggests the addition of four letters to the alphabet. Apparently he would prepare his country for adoption of America's alphabetical new deal.

Last week's reported break between Paulette Goddard and Charles Chaplin must have afforded the comedian a good deal of quiet amusement. The whole thing seems to have had no more foundation than the facts that Charlie had a visitor in tow and Paulette went to spend a few days in the desert with her mother.

Paulette is now due back in town and Charlie's visitor, E. V. Lucas, is on his way to England.

Lucas, who is the editor of the British humorous magazine,

"Punch," came all the way from London to California to do research on the essayist, Charles Lamb. The Huntington Library in Pasadena has a store of material on the early English author.

Now that his house-guest is gone,

Chaplin's state of mind is believed to be a comedian may finally start work upon his picture. He has an outline of the story and has had his camera-

man, Rolfe

Totheroh, and his art director,

Danny Hall, on salary since last

September. The

east and the necessary sets

to start the film

could be assembled in a week,

according to the studio.

Charlie is still determined to have no dialogue in his picture, which will have an industrial background and which will glorify the jobless man.

Though he has given up most of his vices, Gene Fowler still indulges in pastries. The other noon, in a Hollywood restaurant, he ordered one of those rich, flaky creations called "Napoleons."

When, on arriving, it turned out to be a sad-looking pastry, Gene summoned the waiter. "I asked you for a Napoleon," he accused.

"That's what I brought you, sir," replied the caron.

"You mean this?" squealed Gene.

"That it must have been after the defeat."

More acid in its humor is the story that Bill Rankin passes along about the Lincoln impersonator.

Years ago, a certain actor played the Great Emancipator. He finished the engagement, but kept right on playing the part, even to affecting the Lincoln cape and stoop.

One night, at a coffee stall, a pair of friends watched him trying to be dignified over java and doughnuts.

"Still playing Lincoln?" said the first.

"Yeah," replied the other. "That fellow will never be happy until he is assassinated."

Hollywood's first saber duel apparently came off despite police attempts to stop it. At least, the film dance director, who was supposed to be one of the combatants, is now displaying a badly hacked up torso.

Seven stitches were taken in one cut across his chest.

His opponent, rumor declares, was a former German officer in the World War.

promise to Julia Graham, the 19-year-old West Virginia girl, who sleeping potion, because she couldn't ducer has arranged a screen test for the convalescent beauty and is trying to line up a part for her.

either in "Cleopatra" or some other Paramount picture.

One of the main reasons Colleen

Moore hated to close her house in Hollywood was that it took away the jobs of her three Japanese servants, who have been in her employ for more than 10 years. It preyed on her mind so much that she wired them to come on to New York and take over duties in the 14-

room apartment,

which she and

Al Scott maintain in New York.

Game news of the recent blizzard and now the servants refuse to leave California.

Hollywood's tin-pan alley has moved to the edge of the swimming pool at one of the big hotels in Palm Springs. There, over the week end, song-writers gather and hum out new numbers—all to the edification of the non-professional guests at the desert resort.

"THE LONE WOLF'S SON"

by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

SYNOPSIS

Michael Lanyard—formerly known as the "Lone Wolf," an underworld celebrity, but now a respected antique dealer—sails for America on the S.S. "Navarre." Aboard ship, he meets Detective Crane of New York, who hunted the "Lone Wolf" years ago. They talk of Lanyard's reformation preceding his marriage, and the tragic death of his wife and children while he was at war. Later, Lanyard sees a young man dart into the passageway leading to his (Michael's) cabin. He is startled and perplexed by the youth's resemblance to himself. Mrs. Fay Crozier, one of Lanyard's wealthy patrons, and her lovely daughter Fenno are also on board. Despite Mrs. Crozier's denial that she had been negotiating for the Habsburg emeralds, Lanyard believes he has hit upon a guilty secret. He sees Crain hovering near and wonders why, because the detective claims he is no longer in the government service.

CHAPTER IV

"Who is that nice boy, monsieur?"—Fenno Crozier's voice penetrated this light preoccupation. "Who thinks you are so fascinating?"

"Nice boy?"

"Over there, at the other end of the chief engineer's table. Don't look, unless you don't care, for he's watching you like a cat—has been ever since you came in. . . . Wait a minute. Now you may look—he's on his way out."

Lanyard, following her nod, saw leaving the saloon that young man the sight of whom upon a Deck had given him such a bad quarter of an hour.

"That handsome youngster?"

"He is, isn't he?"

"I'm glad you think so, because he strongly reminds me of some one I knew long ago and was very fond of."

"That's funny, because he reminds me, too, of somebody. . . . I've a mind to tell you."

Fenno delayed impishly and Lanyard, though he withstood her gaze with entire composure, lamented the impulse in which he had indulged, he now perceived, at the risk of his secret. The man who thought to trifle with this girl's wits would more wisely pause and think twice about it. And the last thing Lanyard wanted was to have anybody pry into his confidence concerning that hallucination which had visited him in sequel to that brush before dinner. Hallucination was what he now reckoned it safest to call it.

"Do you mind my saying, monsieur, he makes me think of you?"

"To the contrary, I am much flattered." Lanyard at this experienced a sinking sense of indiscretion. The trouble was—he was. "But in Heaven's name!" he expostulated, trying to look properly perplexed. "But how?"

"There's a physical resemblance, of course," the girl began with a crimp of uncertainty in her brows. "—not too decided now, but promising. Oh, but there! I can imagine—well, that he will be more like you when he's a bit older. But it isn't that, really—it isn't his looks so much as his geste. You know what I mean: the impression one gets from somebody really interesting—one doesn't need even to know the person to be sensitive to it."

Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.
HOLLYWOOD, Cal.,—Transatlantic cables have flashed a death message to Douglas Fairbanks in London.

"Rooney," the brown mongrel which was Doug's pet for 10 years and which went to the South Seas with the star to play a part in "Mr. Robinson Crusoe," is dead.

The faithful animal was buried last week on a hillside at Pickfair, where he has lived since Mary Pickford and Fairbanks disagreed and went their separate ways. He was laid to rest with honor next to the grave of Mary's wire-haired terrier, "Zorro." There to mourn him were servants of this home divided—Albert, the majordomo; Charlie, the roustabout, and Pete, the gardener.

Besides these, many a Hollywood celebrity will hear of Rooney's passing with regret. The dog was one of the most familiar figures of the United Artists studio. He always stayed in Doug's dressing-room when the star was on the lot. Charles Chaplin, Joseph M. Schenck, Norma Talmadge, John Barrymore and all the famous guests of his master have patted Rooney and laughed at the tricks Fairbanks taught him.

I'm sure that Mary Pickford shed a tear when she heard the news. For Rooney came to United Artists when she and Doug were in their happy early years. Doug even named him in honor of her picture, "Little Annie Rooney."

Although he is still a newcomer, Earl Carroll is fast becoming one of Hollywood's picturesque figures. The colony is much amused over the producer's latest whimsicality.

Enroute from the Roosevelt Hotel to the Bel Air Country Club, Carroll last week lost a prized brown beret, which had been made to his exact measure by a London tailor.

The showman now offers for its return, either $5 in cash, a bottle of champagne, or if the finder has become attached to the beret, to turn over to him the brown overcoat that goes with it.

Many a luncheon group was convulsed yesterday over the story of Dorothy Dell's latest possum hunt.

The blonde Mississippi gal got together some dogs, a group of Paramount friends and sallied out into the rolling fog to tree a possum.

Sure enough, the dogs got a hot scent and went baying off with the would-be hunters in pursuit. Unlike Dorothy's fruitless expedition will hold its monthly meeting at the fire house on April 2.

SLINKY, MERMAID SILHOUETTE USED FOR WEDDING GOWNS

By Nadia De Beaud

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
PARIS—(INS)—Although this is not the full season for weddings, still Parisian society has had a few lovely brides recently, who looked especially well in the slinky, mermaid silhouette wedding gowns now shown. Most of the gowns are high-necked with long, close-fitting sleeves. One French bride I saw had a frock with the neck draped high under her chin, and her veil tucked under her ears as did the vestal virgins.

In contrast was the gown worn by Mlle. Lily Cleurel, which had an 1830 decollete, with straps over the shoulders to hold up the bodice with the long sleeves. Another lovely gown was a Lelong model with a wide berth on the bodice. A muf of lilacs-of-the-valley is a charming innovation and easier to handle than the traditional bouquet.

USE OF THE BOW AS A FINISHING TOUCH TO GOWN IS AN ART

(I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)
PARIS—(INS)—The Crillon bar is increasingly popular, even though the frost of the hotel is now bespattered with the white drench caused by bullets, many of which killed peaceful citizens demonstrating against a corrupt cabinet. I saw Madame Paul Morand, wife of the well-known writer, there one sunny afternoon. Her dress, a Lelong model, especially attracted my attention for it was of grey wool with a huge navy blue satin bow, dotted with white, the two loops of which were encrusted most knowingly across to the shoulders.

The use of the knot as an ornamental finish to a gown is one of the most difficult effects to achieve and also most effective when done with art. Moreover, the pulling of the two ends to the shoulders gave the desired effect of width without exaggeration.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

CONTINUED stormy and cold weather is beginning to result in a real shortage of fresh fish. Fair quantities of haddock fillets and cod steaks from the Atlantic, and of halibut and salmon from the Pacific are available at moderate prices. Salt codfish and finnan haddie are also fairly plentiful. Canned fish in variety may be substituted for fresh.

Eggs are fresh, plentiful and as cheap as they are likely to get. Well-aged cheese is inexpensive and probably offers more balanced food value, for the money expended, than any other food. Dried peas and beans are also nourishing and they may be purchased in cans ready to use, if desired.

Fresh vegetables in variety are plentiful and most of them are inexpensive. The asparagus season is just beginning. Apples, bananas, grapefruit and oranges are all attractively priced. Strawberries, too, are plentiful and cheap.

The Quaker Maid suggests the following dinner menus.
